Carroll Rosenbloom

President

Since bringing pro football back to Baltimore in 1953 after a two-year absence Carroll Rosenbloom has compiled an enviable record: His teams have not only swept to three Western Conference championships and two NFL titles but they haven't finished below the .500 mark in the last eight seasons—quite an achievement in view of the strong competition. But the Colts owner and president has never been one to relax in the glow of past accomplishments. Last fall, for example, the Colts, in nailing down the Western crown with a 12-2 log, rolled to 11 straight victories—a team record. But the chief Colt was bitterly disappointed by the championship game loss in Cleveland. He will be completely satisfied only after the ultimate conquest. If his Colts aren't in contention for the big prize all the way this year he'll press hard to find out why they aren't.

"We've received magnificent support in Baltimore and, though I realize that it's an impossible order, I'd like nothing better than to reward the fans with a championship every season," said Rosenbloom. "We just can't ask for any more from our rooters. It's strictly up to the players to produce now—and I'm confident, as always, that they will in 1965."

The Colts' eight home games in 1964 attracted a record 474,352 people through the turnstiles. For the first time in the club's history all of the home contests were sellouts. Attendance has been on the increase ever since Rosenbloom applied his magic touch in 1953. It was the same deft stroke that has gained him fantastic success in many varied off-sports enterprises. He knows what he wants at all times and rarely fails to get it. Next project: A third world's championship.

A Baltimorean all the way and a former University of Pennsylvania halfback, Rosenbloom shuttles between New York City and his hometown to handle his business dealings, and he also maintains a residence in Margate, N. J. His wife is the former Velma Anderson and they have three children—Danny, a University of Baltimore student; Steve, a pre-law student at Georgetown; and Suzanne, a Baltimore secondary school student.

Don Kellett

Executive Vice President

One of football's top executives, Don Kellett was handed the momentous job of getting Baltimore's pro team off the ground in 1953. Utilizing a rich gridiron background as player and coach, the energetic redhead began to collect personnel—the type that he hoped would eventually bring fans into Memorial Stadium and a World Championship to Baltimore.

In the process of constructing a squad that would not disgrace itself Kellett also won thousands of spectators for the Colts with his effective public relations acumen. He had, and still has, the knack for winning fans for the club though the team may not be faring too well. The former University of Pennsylvania football, basketball and baseball hero has been active in every phase of the Colts' operation.

His past endeavors as a coach, sportscaster and television executive have proven invaluable aids to him in his capacity with the Colts. The Brooklyn, N. Y. product, who includes several years as a pro second baseman among his past accomplishments, resides in Towson, Md. His wife is the former Dorothea L. Tevis, and daughters Dona and Dee are both married.

The Colts' very active and capable legal counsel is noted Baltimore attorney William D. Macmillan. Of great aid to the Colts in matters of law, he also helped to successfully defend the N.F.L. against anti-trust charges in 1961.

Now serving on the Colts' Board of Directors and his fourth year as the club's secretary-treasurer is J. Duval Farrar. He has been with Carroll Rosenbloom's enterprises since 1951.

AT THE COLTS' COMMAND

DON SHULA, Head Coach

In his second season as a head coach Don directed the Colts to the Western Conference championship and gained "coach of the year" acclaim. There could be no disputing his right to this title, as he guided the Colts to a team record 11 straight victories and a better-than-ever 12-2 mark for the season. Then disaster struck in the championship game in Cleveland and provided the former John Carroll halfback with a lofty goal for 1965—the NFL crown that escaped his exciting Colts last fall. While playing before a record 763,726 spectators in the league season, including eight consecutive home sellouts, Shula's stampeders smashed their own scoring standards with 54 touchdowns and 428 points.

His trade for linebacker Steve Stonebreaker and his employment of other key personnel were vital to the club's unlooked for success in 1964. Mistakes in strategy were reduced to a bare minimum as he kept his crew happy, healthy, hungry and eager for action and victory. He knows his personnel and their capabilities remarkably well, especially for one so shy of head coaching experience. Don had previously been an assistant coach at Virginia, Kentucky and the Detroit Lions (3 years as the defensive chief).

A blazing competitor as a NFL defensive back—Cleveland, 1951-52; Baltimore, 1953-56; and Washington, 1957—Don is just as explosive as a coach, whether it be at a practice session or on the sidelines during a game. He believes in direct and immediate communication with his players and he'll congratulate or condemn them on the spot. The 35-year-old Painesville, Ohio native also possesses a keen sense of humor, which he doesn't hesitate to use to keep the squad loose. The Colts' third head coach since the franchise returned to Baltimore in 1953 is responsive to comments and suggestions from his assistants and gives them the authority they require to do a top job.

This is Charlie's twelfth year on the Colts' coaching staff, concentrating on the secondary defense, although he was in charge of the ends when he first reported for duty in 1954 from Case Tech, where he'd been an assistant for four years, and the Cleveland Browns, where he'd served as a personnel scout. When Weeb Ewbank assumed field control of the Colts in '54 he brought Charlie along. Ewbank left the Colts after the 1962 campaign, but Charlie was retained as an assistant in a Shula specialty—the defensive backfield.

The one-time Washington (Mo.) University halfback from Somerville, N. J. has helped to develop many outstanding defenders during his hitch with the Colts, including last fall's "find"—linebacker Steve Stonebreaker. Charlie has devised his own reaction and agility drills for training camp and he's been ever alert to new developments in pro football. His backfield crew of 1964 intercepted 23 enemy aerals and contributed to the recovery of 18 enemy fumbles. And he's plugging for improvement in 1965.

Winner, who launched his coaching career at his alma mater in 1949 as the freshman instructor, lives in Baltimore with wife Nancy and daughters Lisa and Cindy.

DON McCAFFERTY, Offensive Backfield Coach

Last autumn, in his second term as chief of the offensive backfield, Don not only helped to get Lenny Moore perking in high gear, but also primed rookie fullback Tony Lorick as a first class ballcarrier and blocker. His offensive operatives netted a league-leading 4,779 yards and had Moore and quarterback John Unitas gain All-Pro acclaim. In addition to drilling the attacking backs, big Mac, who formerly played end for Ohio State, the Army's Fort Bragg eleven and the New York Giants, also served as a press box spotter for the Colts in 1964.

Prior to assuming his present duties under Don Shula in 1963, Don spent four years coaching the Colts' ends and scouting their opposition. The hard-working Ohioan got started as a coach in 1949, tutoring the ends at Kent State after a year with the Cleveland Recreation Department following his retirement from the Giants.

He now resides in Timonium, Md. with wife June and children Jaclyn, Donnie, Billy and Lisa.

JOHN SANDUSKY, Offensive Line Coach

A third holdover from the Weeb Ewbank regime, incoming coach Don Shula switched gigantic John from the defensive line, after a four-year tour of duty, to the offensive barrier, where he's done an excellent job over the past two seasons—including among his achievements the breaking in of Bob Vogel as a rookie tackle in 1963 and the successful conversion of Jim Parker from All-Pro tackle to All-Pro guard. Sandy has more tough tasks ahead but no one doubts that he can handle them.

The erstwhile All-Pro offensive tackle with Cleveland and Green Bay—he retired as a player after the 1956 campaign with the Packers—can still get in there and mix it up with his charges in order to demonstrate a maneuver. He pushes his blockers hard and they've responded admirably to his methods.

A Philadelphian who played and coached at Villanova before entering the NFL as a Colt assistant in 1959, John now makes his home in Baltimore with wife Ruth and children Jack, Jim, Joe, Gerry and Ruth Ann.

BILL ARNSPARGER, Defensive Line Coach

Added a year ago to relieve Gino Marchetti of his responsibilities as defensive line coach, Bill made an auspicious debut as a pro mentor, helping to bring the best out of alternating tackles Billy Ray Smith and Guy Reese and aiding immeasurably in the continued progress of sophomore tackle Fred Miller. The "quiet coach" also gave Don McCafferty a lift with the press box phone chores. A keen student of the game, he's quick to spot mistakes and get the situation corrected. Rating top priority for 1965—produce a suitable replacement for retiring Marchetti.

An ex-tackle and offensive line coach at Miami (Ohio) University, Bill had been serving as chief assistant to head coach Tommy O'Boyle at Tulane prior to accepting Don Shula's offer. In previous coaching stints Arnsperger had drilled Jim Parker and the rest of the line at Ohio State and bossed the offensive and defensive walls at Kentucky—where he first became associated with Shula—through eight seasons. He's a native of Paris, Ky.

Bill now dwells in Timonium, Md. with wife Betty Jane.

DICK BIELSKI, Offensive End Coach

This former standout pass receiver, blocker and placekicker in the NFL was appointed the Colts' end coach in 1964 after retiring from nine years of pro play. Dick labored diligently as a drill-master and participated in practice sessions whenever the occasion demanded. He also scouted the Colts' opponents and turned in excellent reports on each future foe. That his efforts in this line were successful was borne out by the Colts' performances on the field—particularly after they'd employed no game scout the previous year.

In his pro career with Philadelphia—which drafted him first in 1955 from Maryland—Dallas and Baltimore, the Patterson Park (Baltimore) High School product caught 107 passes for 1,305 yards and booted 58 conversions and 26 field goals for a total of 208 points. He entered the league as a fullback, the position he played in college, then was shifted to tight end by the Eagles in 1958.

Dick lives in Timonium, Md. with wife Jo and children Debbie, Rickey, Randy and Jody.

KEITH MOLESWORTH, Personnel Director

This is something of a comeback year for the former Monmouth (Ill.) College and Chicago Bears quarterback, since he'll be battling back from a winter siege in the hospital with a heart ailment. There's no doubt that he ranks as one of the best-liked and most highly-respected personnel men in the business—both by the pro and college people.

Since being named the Colts' personnel director in 1954 Keith has headed many outstanding college players into the Baltimore camp—reeling off such glittering number one draft choices as Alan Ameche, 1955; Lenny Moore, 1956; and Jim Parker, 1957; in successive years. Actually, his brilliant crop of 1955, which netted a flock of first stringers, contributed greatly to future Colts championships. Moley struck a similarly rich vein of talent in 1963—and Baltimore's Western Conference title last fall followed shortly thereafter.

The gridiron talent expert from Washington, Iowa was the Colts' first head coach in 1953 after the franchise was returned to Baltimore. He previously served as an instructor with the professional Honolulu Warriors, Richmond Rebels and Pittsburgh Steelers and the U. S. Naval Academy. And in addition to playing six years of football with the Bears during their title years, he also saw pro baseball action as an infielder with the International League Baltimore Orioles and Syracuse Chiefs.

Keith and his wife Doris make their home in Baltimore.

Getting Ready at Western Maryland

On July 25th of this year the Colts checked into the dormitories at Western Maryland College in Westminster, Md. for the 13th consecutive summer. Only about 30 miles from Baltimore, the Colts practice sessions afford eager fans with an excellent opportunity to preview the prospects for the coming season themselves. And the small, quiet college town provides a near ideal atmosphere for the pro grididders to concentrate on the job they have to do. The school itself offers the finest in facilities, including practice fields, locker rooms and training quarters, plus such cooperative and active officials as Dr. Lowell S. Ensor, president; Dick Clower, athletic director; and Byron Rice, commissary chief.

The Colts' Band Marches On

A group of dedicated musicians, the Colts Marching Band is now tooting and stepping out for the 19th straight year—getting its start in 1947, along with the All-America Conference Colts. When Baltimore had no pro football franchise in 1951-52 the Band played on—and was in full stride when the Colts returned to the NFL in 1953. The volunteers who comprise the 127-member outfit represent all kinds of occupations and range in age from 16 to 60. Since the Band participates annually in such events as the Independence Day and St. Patrick's Day parades and supplies entertainment at the Preakness Race, Family Day at the Colts training camp and the Colts Intra-Squad game, practices and meetings are held throughout the year. The Band has also played at numerous Colts road games, including championship contests in New York and Cleveland.

The officers for 1965 are: George Linsky, president; Richard Taylor, vice-president; David Cook, treasurer; Bill Miller, secretary; Art Schmersal, director; Ross Bierly, asst. director; Richard Otto, drum major; Dan O'Toole, drill instructor; Sam Skolnik, public relations; Rick Coch, librarian; Marge Schmidt, majorettes; Joy Switzer, cheerleaders; Jack Morgan, choreographer; and Joe Tharpe, color guard.

THEY KEEP THE COLTS KICKING

In their various ways trainer Ed Block, assistant Dick Spassoff and equipment manager Fred Schubach keep the Colts functioning at a high level throughout the season. Block, who owns B.S. and M.A. degrees in physical education from the University of Missouri and a Ed.D. degree from Columbia University, has been attending to wounded Colts since 1954. His record of healing has been remarkable as he works on the players as individuals that he knows inside out. They have been quick to respond to his deft treatment and they respect him for his knowledge and ability. He and the irrepressible Spassoff, who's been with the club since 1957, make the ultimate use of the best and latest equipment in keeping the Colts in action—as they did a year ago when the absence of disabling injuries helped considerably in the team's winning the Western Conference title. Too much credit cannot be given Block and Spassoff for this accomplishment. When Eddie isn't hustling the sidelines or toiling in the training room he serves as a one-man wake-up crew at training camp, accepts orders for his hand exerciser and works during the off-season in the research department of the Martin Aircraft Company . . . Sidekick Spassoff, a former Bulgarian Olympic gymnast and fencer, is a live-wire on the sidelines during a game and is at no time at a loss for words—mostly humorous. The operator of a flourishing Sauna Health Club in Baltimore, which he handles with the aid of son John, Dick popularized Sauna as a therapeutic device in the Colts' locker room three years ago. The holder of a B.S. degree in education and a M.A. degree in psychology, he studied at George Williams College in Chicago, Wittenberg and Columbia.

What Block and Spassoff are to the players' physical well being, Schubach is to their equipment. A Philadelphian who grew up learning the business from his father, who held a similar job for many years with the Eagles, Fred has been equal to many problems, both during practice and in the heat of league battle. At the season's end he serves in the ticket office, books games for and coaches the Colts basketball team and rigs up a personnel board for the coaching staff that is his own creation. One glance informs the staff who's playing where in the NFL.

THE COLTS ASSOCIATES

On August 7 of this year the Associates will participate in their pet project, the 13th Annual Colts' Intra-Squad Game in Baltimore's Memorial Stadium, along with Buddies, Inc., a citizens' committee. This will be the 12th contest played for the benefit of the city's Police Boys' Clubs and to date the Blue-White scraps have attracted approximately 450,000 spectators. The 25 members of the Associates, they imposed the limit themselves, will pitch in with typical fervor to make sure that both the Intra-Squad game and the annual Family Day gathering at the Colts' training camp—this year on August 1—are reeled off with their customary success. The Associates, who were created along with pro football in Baltimore in 1947, represent a wide variety of businesses in the area and are ever anxious to assist the Colts in any way possible. Elected as the Associates' officers for 1965 are: George Glorius, chairman; Kirk McWilliams, vice-chairman; and Newt Krabbe, secretary-treasurer. Harvey Weeks represents the Associates on the Council of Colts Corrals.

AND THE COLTS CORRALS

The members of the eleven Corrals might be characterized as the typical Colts fans. They attend every game—complete with Corral identification—often make road trips to cheer their heroes in foreign ball parks, stage rallies for their favorite pro football team, and hold regular meetings throughout the year—discussing the Colts and the grid sport winter, spring, summer and fall. Individually they raise funds for various worthy charities and last winter they combined to put on a dance which netted close to $1,000 for the Maryland Association for Mentally Retarded Children. Among their other many achievements of the past year, was a mighty contribution of manpower and effort to the Ford Motor Company's Punt, Pass & Kick program in Baltimore. The Corrals' officers for 1965 are: No. 1, George Brandt; No. 2, Charles Eckels; No. 3, Bob Weal; No. 4, Ed Digges; No. 5, Henry Dean; No. 6, Chester Becker; No. 7, Russ Wiebel (Hagerstown, Md.); No. 8, Vince Contrino; No. 9, Frank Olszewski; No. 10, Carl Parrish; No. 11, John W. Nelson (Salisbury, Md.); No. 954, Jerry Washington.

COLTS 12-2, BUT BOW TO BROWNS

Due to that nightmarish 27-0 slaughter by the Browns in Cleveland last December 27, there has been some tendency to ignore the fine seasonal record compiled by the 1964 Baltimore Colts. After suffering a disheartening 34-24 loss to Minnesota in their opening league contest the Colts came charging back to claim a club mark by reeling off eleven straight victories. They had never before won more than nine games in a season and last fall they finished with a 12-2 log. They also hit a new high in points with 428.

Under second-year coach Don Shula's highly effective lash the Colts thrived on the opposition's mistakes and made few of their own. Shula's forces lost the ball to the enemy via fumbles and interceptions only 19 times but wrested the ball away from their foes on 41 occasions. The Colts rarely failed to cash in on an opportunity. They also far outdistanced their opponents in returning and covering punts and kickoffs. And it was also to the Colts' advantage that they were able to avoid disabling injuries.

The Colts' brief but exciting reign of invincibility was shattered ingloriously on the wind-swept turf of Cleveland's Municipal Stadium, two days after Christmas. It was a searing, shocking defeat for a Baltimore team that was favored to continue its regular season march of triumph into the NFL Championship Game. Now Shula must refit the pieces in his mangled machine. It won't be difficult to drum up incentive for the 1965 squad. Everyone knows about that near-miss in Cleveland. This year's objective is a direct hit. The Colts took the following route to the Western Conference title:

Sunday, Sept. 13 Vikings 34, Colts 24 (35,563) Away

The second time they had possession of the pigskin the Vikings indicated that they were in high gear offensively, as halfback Tommy Mason zoomed 51 yards up the middle on a draw play and tallied the touchdown that concluded a four-play, 70-yard drive. Lenny Moore lunged two yards for a tying TD and later scored on a 70-yard air strike but that was the extent of the Colts' attack. Minnesota, while spinning off 74 plays to Baltimore's 49, amassed 463 yards to the opposition's 230, with Mason rushing for 137 yards and fullback Billy Brown picking up 103. Quarterback Fran Tarkenton also pitched for a pair of touchdowns.

Sunday, Sept. 20 Colts 21, Packers 20 (42,327) Away

This could have been the key victory for the 1964 Colts as they rebounded from the dreadful showing in Minnesota to win for the first time in Green Bay. There were important plays galore in this encounter, including John Unitas touchdown passes of 52 and 40 yards to Moore and John Mackey, respectively, as the visitors rolled to a 21-13 halftime lead. Paul Hornung's wide-to-the-right conversion attempt after the second Packer score proved fatal. The Colts, though outgained, 308 to 261 yards, held on grimly through the final 30 minutes, with Jerry Logan and Don Shinnick contributing fourth quarter interceptions that preserved the triumph.

Sunday, Sept. 27 Colts 52, Bears 0 (56,537) Home

It was no contest from the start, with the Colts rumbling to a 24-0 first half advantage, then pouring it on in the second half. The Colts piled up 456 yards and capitalized on Chicago mistakes. Unitas completed 11 of 13 aerials for 247 yards and three scores, then turned the quarterbacking over to Gary Cuozzo, who was two-for-two with a six-pointer. After this conquest the Colts had to be regarded as serious Western Conference contenders.

Sunday, Oct. 4 Colts 35, Rams 20 (56,537) Home

On their second offensive play the Colts tallied on a 46-yard Unitas-to-Jimmy Orr bomb. The improved Rams battled back to forgo a 13-7 intermission edge—by virtue of a pair of Bruce Gossett field goals. It was Unitas-to-Orr for touchdowns from 43 and 35 yards and Moore dashing into the end zone from 12 and 33 yards as the Colts tore the tussle apart down the stretch. In all, the diminutive Orr snared five throws for 145 yards and three scores. Bill Munson went all the way as the L. A. quarterback and impressed the Colts with 18 completions in 32 attempts for 256 yards.

Monday, Oct. 12 (n) Colts 47, Cardinals 27 (60,213) Home

Memorial Stadium was sold out in a week as the Cardinals had to switch the site of the contest from St. Louis on a week's notice. Once again, everything broke right for Baltimore. The Colts vaulted to a 17-0 lead in the opening quarter and were never threatened. Lou Michaels tied a Colts record by booting field goals of 35, 44, 42 and 37 yards, and halfback Tom Matte reeled off the longest Colts run of the season—80 yards for six points. Outstanding in defeat for St. Louis was defensive halfback Pat Fischer, who limited Orr to a single catch for nine yards.

Sunday, Oct. 18 Colts 24, Packers 21 (60,213) Home

For the second time Green Bay racked up more yardage than Baltimore, 401 to 258, but the Colts had the gritty defense when necessary—holding for downs on their own two-yard line after Lenny Lyles halted a 73-yard pass play by tackling Max McGee from behind. And Hornung missed all of his five field goal efforts—the last one being blocked in final two minutes by tackle Billy Ray Smith and returned 36 yards to Packers' 34 by Jerry Logan. Four plays later Moore streaked five yards for the deciding touchdown. Lenny also chipped in with a brilliant 21-yard scoring jaunt. But Elijah Pitts followed with a 65-yard punt runback and a 21-17 Green Bay advantage. Bart Starr excelled for the Packers, completing 18 of 33 tosses for 286 yards.

Sunday, Oct. 25 Colts 34, Lions 0 (57,814) Away

After a powerful push from the opening kickoff died on the Colts' 28, the Lions could never get their offense untracked. Baltimore was up, 21-0, after 30 minutes. The Colts intercepted three Milt Plum passes, including one by Logan that he returned for 18 yards and a TD. The Lions' ground attack was restricted to 53 yards. Other Colts touchdowns were registered by Moore, via an 11-yard run, and Raymond Berry and Orr on flips of nine and 19 yards from Unitas.

Sunday, Nov. 1 Colts 37, 49ers 7 (60,213) Home

The Big Blue defense asserted itself once again. A 47-yard interception return by Bob Boyd and an eight-yard TD excursion by linebacker Steve Stonebreaker with a John Brodie fumble set the defensive pace. The Colts were in front, 23-0, by halftime and it was all over. Tony Lorick spearheaded the Baltimore rushers with 80 yards on 12 carries, while Berry's five receptions for 96 yards led the winners' receivers.

Sunday, Nov. 8 Colts 40, Bears 24 (47,891) Away

Rudy Bukich took over at quarterback in the second half for the Bears, completed 10 of 15 aerials for 185 yards and three touchdowns, and almost transformed defeat into victory. His chief accomplice was the brilliant Johnny Morris, who grabbed 10 throws for 183 yards. The Colts' heroes included Lorick, who cracked the line for 126 yards on 14 hauls and raced 60 yards to set up six points just when the Grizzlies were applying third period pressure under Bukich. There was also the irrepressible Orr with his six catches for 123 yards and Michaels, again tying a record with field goals of 28, 27, 20 and 42 yards. The Colts netted 479 yards.

Sunday, Nov. 15 Colts 17, Vikings 14 (60,213) Home

After a scoreless first half, a 74-yard TD missile, Unitas to Moore, got the Colts off winging in the third period. The Vikings' finally overcame Baltimore's 10-0 edge on Tommy Mason's 21-yard scamper with nine minutes left. The Colts climaxed the next series by scoring the decisive TD via Unitas' 27-yard pitch to a diving Alex Hawkins (subbing for the injured Berry) in the end zone. Three interceptions aided a Colts defense that was jolted for 106 yards in 19 carries by Bill Brown and 78 yards in 13 trips by Mason.

Sunday, Nov. 22 Colts 24, Rams 7 (72,137) Away

Defense was the key to this Western Conference title-clincher in L. A. A rampaging Baltimore line, assisted by assorted blitzers, jarred Ram passers Roman Gabriel and Bill Munson eleven times for losses totaling 102 yards and shackled the home team with an overall net of 131 yards. A pair of up-the-middle scoring bursts of 18 and 17 yards by Moore and Jerry Hill provided the Colts with their margin of victory. Unitas completed only six of 18 throws as the defense lugged the heaviest load.

Sunday, Nov. 29 Colts 14, 49ers 3 (33,642) Away

The Baltimore defense remained hot but the attack was only lukewarm. The Colts intercepted five John Brodie heaves—two by Boyd, and recovered three of the 49ers' four fumbles, including one each on the S. F. and Baltimore one-yard lines. The Colts had to overcome a 3-0 first quarter deficit with second and fourth period touchdowns by Moore—two-yard plunge, and Berry—35-yard pass from Unitas, to gain an unimpressive triumph.

Sunday, Dec. 6 Lions 31, Colts 14 (60,213) Home

A Milt Plum-directed Detroit assault force and a tough defense combined to shatter Baltimore's 11-game win streak. Although knocked out of commission at one point during the game, Plum returned to complete 11 of 16 pegs for 143 yards and three touchdowns—two to Jim Gibbons and one to Terry Barr. Plum also rushed for a fourth tally. Moore extended his TD string to 16 games by recovering an Orr fumble in the end zone after a Unitas-to-Orr air strike ate up 59 yards.

Sunday, Dec. 13 Colts 45, Redskins 17 (60,213) Home

It was Farewell Day at Memorial Stadium for Colts heroes Gino Marchetti and Bill Pellington and the club staged a rousing fireworks display, shaking loose from a 17-17 deadlock in the third period. Unitas snapped the tie with a 22-yard scoring shot to Mackey and Moore followed with two wrap-up touchdowns that prolonged his skein to 17 games and gave him a NFL record 20 six-pointers for the season. Continuing to surge, the Colts' rush line smothered Washington quarterbacks eight times for 58 yards.

Sunday, Dec. 27 Browns 27, Colts 0 (79,544) Away

Both teams drew blanks in the first half but the Browns nailed down the World's Championship with a 17-point third quarter. Quarterback Frank Ryan and fullback Jim Brown made the Cleveland attack click, as it rolled up 20 first downs to Baltimore's 11 and out-gained the Colts, 339 to 171 yards. Ryan completed 11 of 18 passes for 206 yards and three touchdowns—all to end Gary Collins from distances of 18, 42 and 51 yards, while the brilliant Brown bulled for 114 yards on 27 shots as Cleveland controlled the ball.

COLTS COULD CASH IN ON YOUTH IN 1965

If the Colts are going to regain their Western Conference crown and get another crack at the league diadem it's possible that the younger element on the squad will be cast in key roles. Looming as stars-to-be on the defensive horizon are tackle Fred Miller, safetyman Jerry Logan and linebacker Steve Stonebreaker. Halfback Bob Boyd gained All-Pro distinction for the first time last fall. Only end Ordell Braase and linebacker Don Shinnick have reached the age of 30. The pressure figures to be greatest on veteran Lou Michaels and 24-year-old Dennis Gaubatz, a summer acquisition from Detroit, who must replace the retired Gino Marchetti and Bill Pellington at end and middle linebacker, respectively. Head coach Don Shula is confident that both players can do the job. The success of the 1965 Colts may depend directly upon the ability of the defense to turn the ball over to an experienced and still explosive offensive unit.

There is no serious age problem with a Colts attack that scored a team record 428 points a year ago, although seven players range in age from 31 to guard Alex Sandusky's 33. There has, however, been no indication of a decline in efficiency. Youngsters on the rise include tackle Bob Vogel, end John Mackey and fullbacks Jerry Hill and Tony Lorick. And much is expected of reserve quarterback Gary Cuozzo. One thing's for sure—if a veteran isn't getting the job done Shula will yank him for someone who will. The stern skipper plays no favorites—and he wants that title more now than he ever did.

In 1964 the Colts had no major injuries with which to contend. Nor did they commit many mistakes. They benefited from the true bounce of the football that is reserved for champions. They also received a 20-touchdown performance from halfback Lenny Moore. They can't rely on this combination of factors again—and they realize it. But Lenny's healthy and eager and under those conditions could tear any foe apart. He's never less than super-exciting. John Unitas? Yes, he's still calling the shots and pulling the trigger from quarterback. The Colts couldn't have a better one on duty. And if the new kids need inspiration, he'll supply that, too.

The 1965 Colts . . .

RAYMOND BERRY (82) End 6'2" 187 S.M.U.

The past season was a memorable one for Raymond, as he hiked his total receptions to a N.F.L. record 506 for his 10 years in the league. While notching 43 catches for 663 yards he tallied six touchdowns, his highest mark since 1960, when he snared 74 aerials for 1,298 yards and 10 scores. He now has 7,583 yards and 53 touchdowns to his credit as a pro and he remains a sure target for crucial yardage, such as the third down toss for a first down. The unheralded 20th draft choice as a future in 1954 still has the knack for wrapping up the difficult pass—leaping, diving headlong or on the ground. The opposition continues to pay him the tribute of double coverage in the defensive secondary. And he studies films, the enemy's personnel and his playbook as religiously as ever, while keeping in the best possible physical condition to do his job.

This remarkable receiver has never ceased trying to improve himself and his techniques, constantly working on new methods to shake loose for that vital aerial. He'll enter the 1965 campaign owning Colts records for most passes caught (lifetime), most passes caught (one season)—75 in 1961, most passes caught (one game)—12 vs. Washington in 1957, most TD passes caught (lifetime), most TD passes caught (one season)—14 in 1959, most yards gained receiving (lifetime), most yards gained receiving (one season)—in 1960, most yards gained receiving (one game)—224 vs. Washington in 1957. After sitting out five games in 1963, the talented Texan spent only two games on the sidelines last fall with a pulled leg muscle . . . Signed as a free agent by the Colts, Jim will be tested as a running back and perhaps as a punter. Attended Dillard High School in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

BOB BOYD (40) Def. Back 5'10½" 190 Oklahoma

In 1964, his fifth in the NFL, Bobby earned All-Pro honors for the first time and played in his initial Pro Bowl contest. He gained these distinctions by dint of sterling defensive backfield play from his left half post, including a career high of nine interceptions for 185 yards in returns. This performance lifted his pro career total to 28 steals for a Colts' career record of 497 yards in runbacks. Actually, it was the first year in several that the ex-Oklahoma quarterback was able to avoid injury—a shoulder separation having dry-docked him for two games in 1963 and hampered his overall effectiveness that year. A rugged battler all the way, the erstwhile tenth draft choice is a tough tackler who admittedly must concede a decided height advantage to most of the flankers he is assigned to shadow . . . ORDELL BRAASE (81) Def. End 6'4" 242 South Dakota

With Gino Marchetti retired Ordell becomes the dean of the Colts' defensive line in his ninth NFL campaign. Although he's been a steady and dependable right end since clinching a starting role in 1960, he's necessarily had to labor in Gino's mighty shadow. Now the husky blond, who built himself up from a 215-pound strippling, will assume leadership of the front four. It will certainly not be a new responsibility for the Colts' 14th draft pick of 1954, since he's now serving his second term as president of the NFL Players Association—a task that has required a great deal of attention but hasn't detracted from his on-the-field performance. Ordell, who spent two years in the Army before sticking with the Colts in 1957, capitalizes on great strength to storm the enemy quarterback . . . Off-season: Bottling sales . . . Wife: Janice. Children: Elizabeth, 9; Tam, 7; Jonathan, 5. Born: March 13, 1932, in Mitchell, S. D. Attended Mitchell High School.

JACK BURKETT (55) Linebacker 6'4" 228 Auburn

An early season pulled leg muscle made football life miserable for Jack last fall after he'd patrolled the left corner as a Colts linebacking regular the previous two campaigns. He started the 1964 opener vs. Minnesota and participated in 12 tackles but came up with a sore leg and although he missed only two contests through the season he'd lost his starting job. This, however, didn't prevent him from getting in some solid shots with the special "teams". In 1965, fully recovered, he's expected to vie with Steve Stonebreaker for his old position on the left side. Burkett, who has fine speed and covers a lot of territory, intercepted three passes and returned them 44 yards during his first two NFL seasons. The Colts drafted him first in 1959 as a future but a shoulder operation delayed his pro debut until 1961 when he was named Baltimore's "rookie of the year". He'd been a two-time college All-American . . . Off-season Printing sales . . . Wife: Jacqueline. Children: Jay, 6; Jon, 4 . . . Born: December 16, 1936, in Thorsby, Alabama. Attended Choctawhatchie (Fla.) High School.

JOHN CAMPBELL (50) Linebacker 6-3 225 Minnesota

In an effort to further strengthen their linebacking corps the Colts traded Larry Kramer, a highly regarded rookie tackle from Nebraska, to Minnesota in order to land the rugged Campbell. Like Steve Stonebreaker, who came to Baltimore via the Vikings a year ago and earned a starting job, John is a college end turned linebacker by Vike coach Norman Van Brocklin. In his two campaigns under the Dutchman the new Colt served as a defensive sub and was prominent on the suicide squad as a tough tackler. He was most impressive in a route-going performance on the corner vs. the Colts last November. He served three years in the Navy before entering college and was tapped on the 11th round of the 1963 draft by the Vikings . . . Off-season: Radio announcer . . . Born: October 7, 1938, in Wadena, Minn. Attended Wadena High School.

GARY CUOZZO (15) Quarterback 6'1" 195 Virginia

In his second pro campaign last autumn, Gary threw a little more and learned a little more. Although he was on target on only 15 of 36 tosses (41.7%), he did account for 163 air yards and two touchdowns as strictly a relief pitcher. At all times he remained the poised, intelligent QB he'd been as a 1963 rookie free agent. It's figured that his performance will improve as he sees more action—as demonstrated by his pre-season efforts a year ago when he completed 31 of 52 aerials (59.6%) for 422 yards and five scores. The former Phi Beta Kappa can fire short or deep with unerring accuracy . . . Off-season: Dental student at University of Tennessee . . . Wife: Margaret . . . Born: April 26, 1941, in Montclair, N. J. Attended Glen Ridge (N. J.) High School.

MIKE CURTIS (32) LB-Fullback 6'2" 225 Duke

The Colts had Mike rated as one of the nation's top collegiate linebackers last year, but his fullbacking feats were perhaps even more spectacular as he led the Blue Devils' ballcarriers by rushing for 497 yards on 121 carries (4.1 ave.). He also tied for team scoring honors with four touchdowns. A power runner on offense, he was hailed by scouts who observed him on the defense, as a "fierce tackler with great pursuit." The rugged Maryland-bred gridder was credited with one interception which he returned for 60 yards. Fast, mobile and aggressive, he earned All-Atlantic Coast Conference full-back honors as a sophomore, then was struck down by injuries toward the close of his junior and senior campaigns. The Colts, as a matter of fact, named him as their number one draft pick while he was recovering from a shoulder separation . . . Hometown: Rockville, Md. . . . Born: March 27, 1944. Attended Richard Montgomery High School.

ROOSEVELT DAVIS (83) Def. End. 6'5" 260 Tenn. A&I

There may be opportunities for newcomers at both defensive end and offensive tackle this season and Roosevelt will be ready to take a stab at either or both spots. He's big enough, strong enough and agile enough to go either way for the Colts, having overcome the effects of a faulty knee that had slowed him down temporarily in college. "The 'Truck' is very quick for his size and could play tough defensive end for the Colts" said Tennessee A & I mentor John Merritt of Baltimore's eighth round draft pick . . . Wife: Greta . . . Hometown: Jackson, Miss. . . . Born: November 29, 1941. Attended Jim Hill High School.

TED DAVIS (35) LB-End 6'1" 225 Georgia Tech

This rough, active athlete could earn a shot at Bill Pellington's vacated middle linebacking slot in 1965, after several stabs at the position late last season in his rookie term, or he could be utilized as a corner backer or as a tight end. Ted might not be the biggest middle man in the league but he can cover ground, hits with authority and scraps all the way. A fourth round draft choice, he was used offensively at end in college and also relieved Colts tight end John Mackey on several occasions a year ago. A two-year starter at Georgia Tech, he was regarded as the team's top blocker and defender and concluded his undergraduate action in the Senior Bowl

. . . Off-season: Student at Georgia Tech . . . Born: July 27, 1942, in Memphis, Tenn. Attended Messick High School. Wife: Linda.

JOHN DIEHL (78) Def. Tackle 6'7" 265 Virginia

A valuable fill-in man and special "teams" performer in 1964, his fourth NFL term, John worked harder than ever while trimming his weight down to almost 260 pounds—quite an achievement for a guy who reported at close to 300 pounds in 1961 after a three-year lay-off from football. The Colts had picked him seventh as a future in 1958, chiefly because of his size and reputed strength. He's the type of player who toils as diligently in practice as he does in the game and he'll be making a strong bid for a starting defensive tackle role this fall. Included among his '64 accomplishments was the recovery of a San Francisco fumble on the Colts' one-yard line

. . . Off-season: Service sales representative . . . Born: January 27, 1936, in Philadelphia, Pa. Attended Frankford High School.

BOB FELTS (47) Halfback 6'2" 205 Florida A&M

A highly regarded running back for the Rattlers, Bobby is listed primarily as an offensive halfback candidate with the Colts, but some defensive duty is also possible. The "most valuable player" in last December's Orange Blossom Classic conquest of Grambling, he's an explosive type ballcarrier who rushed for 699 yards (6.5 ave.) and 11 touchdowns in 1963 and for 468 yards (5.1 ave.) and 10 scores last fall, despite having to sit out three games with an injury. He saw some action in last January's Senior Bowl game. The Colts drafted him on the sixth round . . . Hometown: Miami, Fla. . .

Born: June 26, 1942. Attended Northwestern High School.

JERRY FISHMAN (51) Linebacker 6'1" 225 Maryland

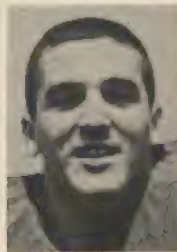

After being drafted 14th by the Colts as a future, Jerry decided to pass up his final college season to take a fling with the pros. Both physically and mentally he would seem to be equipped for the job. An extremely volatile combatant he handled both full-backing and linebacking chores as a sophomore, leading the Terps in rushing with a net of 480 yards and a 4.1 yard average. Last fall he was shifted to a linebacker post on a permanent basis and delighted in tearing up the opposition. The Colts are priming him for a crack at a linebacker berth . . . Wife: Eileen . . . Hometown: E. Norwalk, Conn. . . . Born: September 13, 1943. Attended Norwalk High School.

RUSSELL FRITZ (14) Def. Back 6'0" 195 Millersville St. (Pa.)

A Colt fan who thought that he might be able to aid the Colts' punting department, Russ applied for and is receiving a trial as a booter and defensive back. After two seasons as a quarterback at Millersville the sturdy redhead entered the Army and proceeded to develop a remarkable talent as a punter. In nine games for Fort Lee last fall he thumped the ball 54 times for a 47.0-yard average that not only led the nation's colleges but set a service record. One of his kicks travelled 91 yards to the enemy's two-yard line . . . Wife: Elizabeth. Children: Russell, Jr., 3 . . . Hometown: Catasauqua, Pa. . . . Born: September 21, 1940. Attended Catasauqua High School.

BILL FULLER (65) Guard 6'2" 240 Sacramento State

An All-Far Western Conference selection on both offense and defense as a tackle, Bill will be tested at guard by the Colts. This steady and aggressive performer was signed as a free agent and could turn out to be a "sleeper" at a position where the Colts could use reinforcements . . . Hometown: Sacramento, Calif. . . . Born: October 13, 1940. Attended Sacramento High School.

DENNIS GAUBATZ (53) Linebacker 6-2 230 L.S.U.

The number one candidate to fill the middle linebacker post vacated by Bill Pellington is expected to be this stiff-smacking acquisition from the Detroit Lions. Dennis was obtained in exchange for fullback Joe Don Looney and a future draft choice this spring. In his previous efforts vs. Baltimore he had been a defensive terror, both as a relief man for Joe Schmidt in the middle and as a thumper on the special teams. When he nails an opponent he really jars him and he has excellent range as a pass defender. With the exception of Wayne Walker he logged more playing time than any Detroit linebacker last fall, his second in the NFL. He was also used at center on placekicks. The Lions drafted him ninth in 1963. As a collegian he played in victories over Colorado and Texas in the 1962 and 1963 Orange and Cotton Bowls, respectively . . . Off-season: Industrial engineer . . . Wife: Carolyn. Children: Dennis,

TOM GILBURG (73) Center-Punter 6'5" 245 Syracuse

Until last autumn tall Tom had been a reserve tackle and punter. Coach Don Shula, however, shifted him to center behind Dick Szymanski in 1964. Although seeing infrequent service on the attack, he did mix it up considerably with the special "teams" and punted 27 times for a sub-par 41.0-yard average, while sharing the duties with newcomer Joe Don Looney. In his four seasons in Baltimore—he was drafted second in 1961—the ex-Syracuse end-tackle has boomed the pigskin 178 times for a club record. He's been hampered, however, by inconsistency, although he rarely fails to loft the ball high into the air, thus permitting quick and effective coverage of the returns by his mates . . . Off-season: Teacher and lacrosse coach at Franklin & Marshall College . . . Wife: JoAnne. Children: Scot, 1 . . . Born: November 27, 1938 in Bronxville, N. Y. Attended Horace Greeley High School in Chappaqua, N. Y.

JIM GRAY (63) Tackle 6'4½" 280 Benedict

A two-way tackle in college, gigantic Jim could wind up on either the defense or the attack in his shot with the Colts. He moves very well for his size and could prove to be another Baltimore free agent "find" . . . Wife: Jeannette. Children: Velvett, 2 . . . Home-town: Johnston, S. C. . . Born: August 14, 1943. Attended Ridge Hill High School in Ridge Spring, S. C.

GEORGE HAROLD (42) Def. Back 6'3" 205 Allen

Drafted 10th by the Colts last December, George is expected to get a shot at a defensive halfback job. A rangy sprinter who has covered 100 yards in 9.9, he saw most of his action as a college senior in the defensive backfield, intercepting eight passes and returning one 55 yards for a TD vs. Shaw. Quick and aggressive, he has demonstrated that he can come up fast to make the tackle. The scouts also reported that he was adept at sizing up the offensive formations and reading keys . . . Hometown: Augusta Ga. . . . Born: April 13, 1942. Attended Lucy Craft Laney High School.

WENDELL HARRIS (26) Def. Back 5'11" 185 L.S.U.

After three years as a relief man in the defensive secondary, Wendell figures to make his best bid to date for a first string berth this fall. The erstwhile all-purpose college back—he excelled both offensively and defensively and also place-kicked for points at L.S.U.—has been used at halfback and safety in the Colts' defensive set-up. He started four games at right safety in 1964 after Jim Welch was sidelined with a knee injury. His one interception netted a 20-yard return vs. San Francisco. Baltimore's number one draft pick for 1962, he's fast, tough and aggressive—being a valuable special "team" operator and ranking fifth among the league's punt returners with a 12.6-yard average for 17 runbacks last season . . . Off-season: Student at L.S.U. . . . Wife: Freddie. Children: Kimberley, Wendell, III. . . . Born: Baton Rouge, La., October 2, 1940. Attended Baton Rouge High School.

ALEX HAWKINS (25) End 6'1" 186 South Carolina

At the start of last season coach Don Shula made the Hawk the captain of the Colts' special teams. The tag "Captain Who?" was pinned on him by a teammate who doubted that Alex would receive the recognition due him when meeting with the more renowned captains in the league in the pre-game midfield get-together with officials. As the leader of the suicide squad the Carolina cottontop instilled spirit, enthusiasm and pride in his mates. He also continued to block and tackle with vigor on the kicking units and returned 16 punts for 122 yards. And as a sub for the injured Raymond Berry at left end vs. Minnesota he made a diving catch of a John Unitas pass for 27 yards and the winning touchdown in a 17-14 conquest of the Vikings. A tough, daring performer at any position, the Hawk gained college acclaim as a strong running back and was drafted second by Green Bay in 1959. The Colts acquired him from the Packers via waivers before the start of that season . . . Off-season: Student at South Carolina . . . Wife: Elizabeth. Children: Steele, 4; Elizabeth, 3 . . . Born: July 2, 1937, in Welch, W. Va. Attended South Charleston (S. C.) High School.

ALVIN HAYMOND (30) Def. Back 6'0" 190 Southern U.

An 18th round draft choice who made the grade, Alvin spent 1964, his freshman season, playing on the "suicide" squads and occasionally subbing at the defensive halfback post. He boasts explosive speed and could be utilized to a greater extent this season both on defense and as a punt and kickoff return specialist. Quick and aggressive, he might make a more serious pitch for a starting halfback berth this year . . . Off-season: Student at Southern University . . . Born: August 31, 1942, in New Orleans, La. Attended L. B. Landry High School.

JERRY HILL (45) Fullback 5'11" 210 Wyoming

In two complete seasons as a NFL regular Jerry the jolter has averaged 4.4 yards per carry each year. Last fall he smashed into the enemy line 12 fewer times than he had in 1963. This was probably due as much to the presence on the squad of rookie hotshot Tony Lorick as anything else. At least Hill escaped the disabling injuries that had rendered him virtually useless in 1961-62—that is, a twisted knee, a broken arm and a broken leg, in that order. These troubles limited his activity to one game in 1961 after he'd been the Colts' third draft choice. He packs a wicked wallop when he hits and is a key man when Baltimore works the ball deep into enemy territory. His blocking is excellent on both running and passing plays and he can also catch the ball. There should be quite a scrap waged for the fullback job this season . . . Off-season: Forestry service . . . Wife: Suzanne. Children: Jamie Elizabeth, 3 . . . Born: October 12, 1939, in Torrington Wyoming. Attended Lingle (Wyoming) High School.

ROY HILTON (85) Def. End 6'6" 225 Jackson State

A two-way end in college, Roy may be best suited for defense in the pro ranks. He could also be tried as a linebacker as the Colts try to beef up their defense. The Colts' 15th draft choice, he's mobile and aggressive and has run a 4.8 40 yards. He has a reputation for going full speed on every play and was tagged "Killer" by his college teammates because of his desire to hit. The coaches figure that he could develop quickly with experience . . . Hometown: Hazlehurst, Miss. . . Born: March 23, 1943. Attended Parrish High School.

RAY JACKSON (48) Fullback 6'2½" 218 Tex. Western

A fullback, tight end and linebacker in college, Ray will probably make a bid for a fullback berth with the Colts. He was signed as a free agent after injuries prevented him from making a really noticeable splash during his college career. When he was healthy he exhibited excellent potential and the Colts, naturally, are hoping they can keep him in one piece. Big and strong, he could provide the Colts' offense with an extra boost . . . Wife: Barbara . . . Hometown: Midland, Texas . . . Born: January 3, 1942. Attended Carver High School.

DAVE JOHNSON (44) Def. Back 6'2" 198 San Jose State

The Colts made Dave their fourth round selection last winter despite the fact that a broken arm sidelined him for most of the 1964 season. A ten-second sprinter over 100 yards, he was recommended by scout Jack Myers and will be tested as a defensive halfback by the Colts. As a sophomore flanker he led his team with 23 receptions for 352 yards. He'd been an All-Southern California choice in high school. This is another case where injuries could have clouded the appraisal of a prospect. The Colts are hopeful that Johnson will make the grade—drafted in the same notch as their standout safetyman, Jerry Logan . . . Hometown: Long Beach, Calif. . . . Born: January 20, 1942. Attended Woodrow Wilson High School.

LOU KIROUAC (61) Tackle 6'3" 240 Boston College

Signed as a free agent by New York in 1962, Lou broke his leg in a pre-season game and was sidelined for the year. In 1963 he was converted from defensive end to offensive tackle and saw some action as a reserve. The Giants swapped him to the Colts in the summer of 1964 and he did a good job of filling in on the offensive line and playing on the special teams, while also keeping in practice as a placekicker. A top-notch receiver as a B. C. end, he once caught three TD passes and booted three extra points in a victory over Detroit U. As a senior he played in both the East-West and Hula Bowl games and also proved to be a track standout as a javelin tosser. In his two pro campaigns he's toiled for two different conference champions . . . Off-season: Sales work . . . Born: May 17, 1940, in Manchester, N.H. Attended Bishop Bradley High School.

JERRY LOGAN (20) Def. Back 6'1" 185 West Texas St.

In his first full pro season in 1964 Jerry conclusively demonstrated that he could hold his own with any safetyman in the league. He's quick after passes and ballcarriers, intercepting six throws for 91 yards in returns last season and also got himself involved in more tackles than any Colts defensive back of recent years. The wiry Texan also has the knack for producing the "big" play—such as the critical fourth period theft of a Bart Starr aerial in Green Bay. He also pounced on a pair of enemy fumbles. The nation's leading college scorer with 110 points in 1962, he's shown that he can really ramble when runbacking interceptions and punts. The Colts' fourth draft pick for 1963, he started the last four games that year after an injury to Andy Nelson and he's been number one ever since . . . Off-season: Ranching . . . Wife: Fannie Lou. Children: Jimmy Mac, 2 . . . Born: August 27, 1941, in Graham, Texas. Attended Graham High School.

TONY LORICK (33) Fullback 6'1" 215 Arizona State

An outstanding rookie in 1964, Tony figures to step up the pace considerably this fall. He got off to a whirlwind start last season but tailed off a bit down the stretch. This drop in effectiveness was traced to infected tonsils. Their removal last March is expected to help bring him back to full strength. While including a 60-yard run from scrimmage and a 59-yard pass reception among his exploits last fall, the solid-smacking fullback wound up with 100 carries for 513 yards (5.1 ave.) and 11 catches for 164 yards. He also returned 13 kickoffs for a team-leading 385 yards (29.6 ave.) and tallied four touchdowns. After winning the starting job early in the campaign he proceeded to spearhead the Colts' improved ground attack. He showed that he could power inside and turn on the speed around the corners. His blocking was also up to pro standards, especially his pass protection. If Tony can make similar progress as a receiver this season he could quickly develop into one of the league's outstanding offensive backs.

The Colts' second draft choice for 1964, the slashing Lorick banged out 805 yards (7.7 ave.) rushing as a senior fullback in college. A second team All-American choice that year, he was also named Arizona State's "most valuable player." As a Los Angeles high school phenom he barreled for over 3,600 yards and scored 230 points in three varsity campaigns. In a follow-up year at Los Angeles J. C. he ran for 1,043 yards. Tony capped his college career by playing in the 1963 East-West Shrine game, then in the 1964 College All-Star game . . . LENNY LYLES (43) Def. Back 6'2" 202 Louisville

Still one of the swiftest defenders in the game, Lenny capitalized on the speed that earned him the reputation as "the fastest man in football" when he was a college phenom to head-off several touchdown-bound foes before they could reach the end zone last autumn. His most successful chase, of course, concluded in his overtaking Green Bay's Max McGee on the Colts' two yard line. The Packers failed to score and lost, 24-21. A hard-working, conscientious performer, Lenny continued to improve in 1964, his second year as a first stringer, intercepting a pair of passes and tackling fiercely, as usual. Overzealousness has cost him a few pass-interference penalties but he can bounce back with a top-flight job on the next play. The Colts selected him first in 1958, then he spent two seasons with San Francisco before returning to Baltimore via the waiver route in 1961. For his first four NFL campaigns he was strictly a kickoff return specialist—and included three runbacks of 100 or more yards among his achievements as a Colt . . . Off-season: Sales representative for tobacco company . . . Wife: Faith. Children: Lenny, 6; Mike, 5; Crist, infant . . . Born: January 26, 1936, in Louisville, Ky. Attended Central High School.

JOHN MACKAY (88) End 6'2" 217 Syracuse

After a spectacular rookie season in which he led the Colts with 726 air yards via 35 receptions, John suffered through an injury-induced slump last autumn. A thigh bruise, sustained early in the season, nagged him all the way and he could never quite recapture his 1963 form as a receiver. As a thumping blocker from his tight end post, however, his reputation suffered not at all. Even when navigation was painful, and definitely curtailed his deep pass patterns, the Colts' number two draft choice for 1963 continued to flatten all foes as a blocker—perhaps the best in the league at his position. The Colts are naturally hopeful that his leg miseries will clear up and that the Syracuse locomotive will be rumbling at full speed—which is considerable—this year. He's a strong runner once he's tucked the ball away, too. In college he played both end and halfback effectively . . . Off-season: Radio sportscaster . . . Wife: Sylvia Ann. JIM MARTIN (37) Halfback 6'1" 217 Fisk

An unheralded performer as a two-way back in college, Jim may be tested both ways by the Colts after having been signed as a free agent. He's quick and has fine reactions and could fit in as a hard-running halfback . . . Hometown: Nashville, Tenn. . . . Born: July 15, 1941. Attended Cameron High School.

TOM MATTE (41) Halfback 6'0" 205 Ohio State

After leading the team in rushing, pass receiving and kickoff returns in 1963, Tom had to adjust to decreased activity last season as Lenny Moore flashed his old form. Even so, he managed to average five yards per carry and reel off an 80-yard TD jaunt vs. St. Louis. Always ready to step into the lineup wherever and whenever he was needed, the former college quarterback performed admirably on the special teams when he wasn't hustling on the attack. He was also the Colts' number three QB and could have been used there if necessary. From his halfback post he completed three of four aerials for 58 yards and a touchdown last year. Tom was a first draft choice in 1961 . . . Off-season: Sales coordinator . . . Wife: Judy . . . Born: June 14, 1939, in Pittsburgh, Pa. Attended Shaw High School in Cleveland, Ohio.

LOU MICHAELS (79) Def. End 6'2" 240 Kentucky

Entering his eighth NFL campaign, Lou looms as a key man in the Colts' defensive set-up for 1965. Used only sparingly in scrimmage action last season, he's now primed to return to the first string status he held for six years with Los Angeles and Pittsburgh prior to being swapped to Baltimore for linebacker Bill Saul and halfback Marv Woodson a week before the opening kickoff of 1964. When he was exposed to the enemy last fall he was as violent as ever and figures to be a capable replacement for the retired Gino Marchetti this season. A left-footed placekicker, who once booted four field goals for the Rams in a game with the Colts, Michaels established a Baltimore record last year by clicking on 53 of 54 extra point attempts. He added 17 field goals for a total of 104 points and contributed some booming kickoffs to the Colts' cause. Back in 1962 he set a Steelers' scoring mark with 110 points. A college All-American, he was picked number one by L.A. and traded to Pittsburgh in 1961 for tackle Frank Varrichione . . . Off-season: Dental equipment sales . . . FRED MILLER (76) Def. Tackle 6'3" 245 L.S.U.

In his second pro campaign Fearless Freddy continued his development into one of the league's premier tackles. He learned a little more about opposing blockers, read his keys better and blasted off from his defensive position faster than ever. And he never stopped working, whether in game action or in practice. As he enters the 1965 season his primary objective is to step up his rush on the enemy passer. His fine speed enables him to make tackles all over the field, and he's tracked down more than a few breakaway ballcarriers from behind, too. The rugged farmboy has already demonstrated that he can play full tilt while not up to par physically, being plagued periodically by muscle spasms in his back. The Colts drafted him seventh as a future in December, 1961 . . . Off-season: Farmer . . . Wife: Charlene. Children: David, 2 . . . Born: August 8, 1940, in Homer, La. Attended Homer High School.

LENNY MOORE (24) Halfback 6'1" 190 Penn State

In his ninth season with the Colts Lenny hit the jackpot as an All-Pro pick—with "comeback player of the year" and "outstanding player" awards tossed in. An All-Pro for the fifth time, he also participated in his seventh Pro Bowl game. Scoring was his specialty in 1964, as he extended to 17 the number of successive league games in which he had crossed the opposition's goal line. Both this string and his one-season production of 20 touchdowns shattered existing NFL standards. The elusive halfback ran his pro career TD output to a team record 98, while leading the Colts with 584 yards rushing and averaging 22.5 yards for each of his 21 receptions. Several of his scampers from scrimmage, especially one against Green Bay, bordered on the fantastic. And he toiled the entire 14-game route without missing any action due to injury. This was particularly encouraging since he'd been sidelined for six games with a cracked kneecap in 1962 and had been idle through seven contests, chiefly due to a head injury, in 1963.

The Colts' first draft choice in 1956, Lenny has now lugged the ball a total of 831 times and caught 302 passes for a team record-breaking aggregate of 9,581 yards. And, of course, he's as dangerous as ever when he packs the ball away within range of six points. He will enter the 1965 campaign as the Colts' regular of-

TIM MURPHY (17) Quarterback 6'0" 175 Air Force

A left-handed passer, Tim, who was signed as a free agent, finished 16th among the nation's college pitchers last fall as he completed 95 of 163 throws (58.3%) for 1,159 yards and seven touchdowns in ten games. He has a strong arm and can move around in the backfield—and peg on the run if necessary. The Colts may make room for a number three quarterback and Murphy will get a solid crack at the job . . . Hometown: LaCrosse, Wis. . . . Born: January 24, 1942. Attended Aquinas High School.

BOB NICK (16) Quarterback 6-2 200 Concordia

This free agent was recommended to the Colts by their former standout placekicker, Steve Myhra. A poised signal-caller and passer in the small college ranks, Bob will be bidding for that third quarterback spot that the Colts may open up. He's strong and rugged and will bounce back up after being plowed under by the opposing line. During his varsity career at Concordia he completed 79 of 164 passes (48.8%) for 1,125 yards and carried the ball 145 times for 661 yards (4.6 ave.) . . . Hometown: Princeton, Minn. . . . Born: April 20, 1943. Attended Princeton High School.

JIMMY ORR (28) Flanker 5'11" 175 Georgia

As is usually the case with this tough little flanker, Jimmy extracted maximum yardage from his receptions—his 40 catches in 1964 paying off in a team-leading 867 yards and six touchdowns. The slight but swift pass-snaring specialist makes the ultimate use of strong, sure hands, a keen knowledge of the opposition's defense, amazingly quick moves and an ability to fake his way into the clear for the throw. The Rams drafted him on the 22nd round in 1958, then shipped him to Pittsburgh before the start of that season. He wound up hauling in 33 aerials for 910 yards and gaining "rookie of the year" acclaim. With Raymond Berry operating on a questionable knee, the Colts obtained Orr from the Steelers before the opening of training camp in 1961 in exchange for Gene Lipscomb and Buzz Nutter. Although hampered by pulled leg muscles that first campaign in Baltimore, he's been a durable performer ever since and enters the 1965 season with a seven-year pro total of 251 receptions for 4,961 yards and 42 touchdowns . . . Off-season: Stockbroker . . . Wife: Eleanor. Children: Julie, 3; Jay, 2 . . . Born: October 4, 1935, in Seneca, S. C. Attended Seneca High School.

JIM PARKER (77) Guard 6'3" 275 Ohio State

In the middle of the 1962 NFL season Jumbo Jim was shifted from offensive tackle, where he'd been an annual All-Pro pick since 1958, to guard. He had to learn new tactics and had to prepare to cope with different opponents—and he also had to pull his 275 pounds out of the line and block for end sweeps. All of this he mastered to the extent that he was named All-Pro at both guard and tackle in 1962 and as a guard each of the past two years. He also played in his seventh consecutive Pro Bowl contest last January. A mighty force in the Colts' attack, he not only affords maximum pass protection but he's likely to be used as a battering ram to flatten enemy defenders for the benefit of Baltimore running backs on short bursts in touchdown territory. A college All-American—his specialty was linebacking—and Outland Trophy winner, Jim was the Colts' number one draft choice for 1957 . . . Off-season: Operates liquor store . . . Wife: Mae. Children: Pamela, 8; Sheri, 7; Jim, 6; Diane, 4 . . . Born: April 3, 1934, in Macon, Ga. Attended Scott High School in Toledo, Ohio.

NEAL PETTIES (84) End 6'2" 198 San Diego State

Regarded as somewhat of a "fringe" player at training camp last summer, Neal flashed enough potential as a receiver to survive the squad cuts. And though his ball-shagging opportunities were limited on a club that was rich in veteran catching talent—two receptions for 20 yards and a TD—he more than earned his keep with his bust-'em-up actions on the special units. A determined blocker and tough tackler, he played not at all like a receiving specialist. Still, the rangy Californian remains one of the club's more promising youngsters and will undoubtedly get lots of offensive work during this year's pre-season contests. A second team Little All-American choice when he snared 22 aerials as a college senior, he was drafted 14th as a future in 1963 . . . Off-season: Student at San Diego State . . . Wife: Mary. Children: Anthony, 3 . . . Born: September 16, 1940, in San Diego, Calif. Attended San Diego High School.

GEORGE PREAS (60) Tackle 6'2" 250 V.P.I.

In 1964, his tenth year in the NFL, George finally began to gain some long overdue recognition. He was honored as second team All-Pro for his consistently fine play at offensive right tackle. As usual, he stayed in the fight all the way and spent very few moments on the bench. But that's been his history since he joined the Colts as their fifth draft pick in 1955, with a record of having started each of his team's games during a four-year varsity career. After being temporarily benched in 1962, Preas rebounded to flash his best blocking form and he's maintained it ever since. He's always been particularly effective at mowing down secondary defenders while leading a ballcarrier downfield. Before securing him at tackle the Colts had tried him at guard and defensive end . . . Off-season: Dairy products distributor . . . Wife: Betty Joyce. Children: Kelly Leigh, 9; George Robert, 7 . . . Born: June 25, 1933, in Roanoke, Va. Attended Jefferson High School.

PORTER RAGSDALE (69) Tackle 6-4 230 Harding College

A free agent signee from Harding College in Little Rock, Ark., Porter is likely to be tested first as an offensive tackle by the Colts. It's probable that he'll fill out his 6-4 frame to considerably more than 230 pounds. He's tough and agile and might make a real stiff battle for the job . . . Hometown: Atlanta Ga. . . . Born: December 26, 1942. Attended Joe Brown High School.

GUY REESE (75) Def. Tackle 6'5" 260 S.M.U.

After two years with Dallas Guy was traded to Baltimore in exchange for starting defensive tackle Jim Colvin before the opening of the 1964 campaign. At 260 pounds Reese is the Colts' biggest starting defensive lineman and rapidly became a solid member of their forward wall last autumn. He's strong and especially effective against running plays. If he can improve on his pass rush he'll be one of the league's top tackles before this season is completed. An ankle injury sustained in training camp hampered his early progress a year ago . . . Off-season: Real estate appraiser . . . Wife: Jurhee . . . Born: September 22, 1939, in Dallas, Texas. Attended South Oak Cliff High School.

GLEN RESSLER (62) Guard-Center 6'3" 235 Penn State

Not the least of Glen's accomplishments in his last year at State was a place on the school's academic honor roll. A farmboy all the way, he majored in agriculture. In the tenth grade he played in the first football game he ever saw. As a college sophomore he lettered as a two-way guard and center, but didn't start until his junior year when he was an All-East pick at guard. His log of 51 unassisted tackles included 15 against Ohio State, an opponent that he ripped into with a vengeance last fall when he served not only as the number one middle guard on defense but was also inserted at center in key offensive situations because of his outstanding blocking ability. His efforts earned him AP and UPI All-East honors, as well as first team acclaim on nine different All-American units. The fact that he was selected as a two-way guard, linebacker, center and defensive tackle on the various All-American squads attests to his versatility. He also was presented with the coveted Maxwell Award in Philadelphia for being named "college player of the year". Ressler, who is slated for an initial test on offense as a guard or center by the Colts, concluded his college career by participating in the East-West Shrine Game, the Hula Bowl and the College All-Star Game. Penn State coach Rip Engle labeled him, "The finest interior lineman I ever coached." The Colts drafted him third last December . . . Wife: Sandra . . . Hometown: Dornsife, Pa. . . . Born: May 21, 1943. Attended Mahanoy (Pa.) Joint High School.

LAMAR RICHARDSON (49) Flanker 6'3" 207 Fisk

Strong and fast, with good hands, Lamar could make the Colts' flankers hustle hard for their jobs. He combines clever fakes with quick moves to break into the open in the enemy secondary. The captain of last winter's Fisk basketball team, he's also a better than average blocker for an outside receiver. An intelligent, easy-to-coach college athlete, the Colts drafted him on the 11th round . . . Hometown: Detroit, Mich. . . . Born: February 2, 1944.

WILLIE RICHARDSON (87) Flanker 6'2" 198 Jackson State

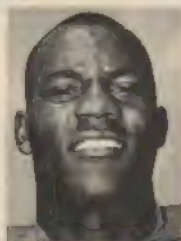

This former Little All-American established a new NAIA standard in 1960 by gaining 1,229 yards via his uncanny ability to catch the football. Willie also caught the winning pitch in the final seconds of the North-South game in Miami, Fla. at the close of his senior year. He still is capable of performing similar feats for the Colts, who drafted him on the fifth round. But he'll have to lick the problem of getting clear of pro defenders before he'll attain NFL stardom. His speed and moves and hands are all good and he's already shown on several occasions that he has a flare for making the spectacular grab. It could be that all he requires to hit the jackpot with the Colts is heavy duty. In his first two NFL campaigns he's pulled down 20 throws for 246 yards . . . Off-season: Auto salesman . . . Born: November 17, 1939, in Clarksdale, Miss. Attended Coleman High School in Greenville, Miss.

TED RODOSOVICH (64) Guard 6'2" 240 Cincinnati

A tough tackle in college who could go up to 250 pounds, Ted is said to possess the necessary size, power and balance to develop into a pro guard. He may need extra work on pulling out of the line but he's quick enough and is eager to play. A variety of minor injuries slowed his progress at Cincinnati after he'd transferred from the U. S. Military Academy following his sophomore season. The Colts drafted him on the 12th round . . . Hometown: Youngstown, Ohio . . . Born: May 31, 1942. Attended Warren G. Harding (Warren, Ohio) High School.

DICK SANDS (21) Def. Back 6'2" 202 John Carroll

After lettering his first two years in college as a defensive back and leading his team with four interceptions as a junior, Dick was shifted back to the quarterback post he held down as a Baltimore schoolboy. He performed brilliantly as a signal-caller and passer in 1964, completing 91 of 158 aerials (57.6%) for 1,272 yards and 11 touchdowns in seven games. He ranked 13th among NCAA college division tossers. A strong runner, he boosted his total yardage to 1,386 via 217 plays. The Colts plan to switch him back to safetyman on defense and the free agent signee could make a favorable impression at the position . . . Hometown: Baltimore, Md. . . . Born: July 23, 1943. Attended Calvert Hall High School.

ALEX SANDUSKY (68) Guard 6'3" 242 Clarion

This will be the 12th year of pro head-knocking for the Colts' vastly underrated guard. Rugged Alex has few, if any, peers as a pass protector from his inside post—and he must challenge some of the league's biggest and strongest defensive tackles, including Detroit's Alex Karras, with whom he's had some titanic struggles. While Sandusky has missed few minutes of action since taking over his present post as a rookie in 1954, he has collected more than his share of bumps and bruises and has ripped into the opposition at less than 100% physically on many occasions. A 16th draft pick, he was tested first at end by the Colts—a position he'd played in college . . . Off-season: Operates bowling lanes . . . Wife: Mary. Children: Vincent, 9; Michael, 8; Stephen, 5; Connie, 4 . . . Born: August 17, 1932, in McKees Rocks, Pa. Attended Stowe Township (Pa.) High School.

BONNIE SHELTON (29) End 6-4 200 Southern Illinois

A 9.9 sprinter over 100 yards, Bonnie caught 20 passes for 278 yards in 1963 and last year pulled down 30 throws for 381 yards. He was signed as a free agent by the Colts, who have been keeping up with his activities since he graduated from high school and played football in the Air Force. The Colts' out-end candidate entered college in January, 1961, following his discharge from the service . . . Hometown: Columbus, Ga. . . . Born: September 27, 1938. Attended Spencer High School.

DON SHINNICK (66) Linebacker 6'0" 235 U.C.L.A.

Ever the alert pass defender, Don intercepted three throws last year to increase his eight-season pro career total to 29—with 225 yards in returns. His theft total is higher than any other linebacker in NFL history. The brawny Californian capped his performance for 1964 by shutting off an early Cleveland threat with an interception in the championship game. His final minute pilfer of a Bart Starr bomb enabled the Colts to successfully protect a 21-20 advantage over Green Bay in the season's second contest—a key play in a key victory for Baltimore. A long-time regular on the right corner, he could be pressed into service at any of the backer-up spots. Regardless of where he plays—and he did a bit of everything in college, including play fullback on the attack—he'll continue to talk-it-up constantly both on and off the field and produce the occasional big play that will dig the Colts out of a jam. He was drafted second in 1957 . . . Off-season: Public speaking . . . Wife: Marsha. Children: Joel, 6; Josh, 3; Peter, infant . . . Born: May 15, 1935, in Kansas City, Mo. Attended San Pedro (Calif.) High School.

JOHN SINGLETON (27) End 6'1" 220 Allen

After coming strong as a senior, John was signed by the Colts as a tight end candidate. He didn't get much rest in college, holding down an end berth on offense and backing up the line on defense. In a game with Benedict he caught three TD passes and two for extra points. The Colts are hopeful that another free agent will pay rich dividends . . . Wife: Marilyn. Children: Adrienne, 1 . . . Hometown: Brunswick, Ga. . . Born: October 13, 1943. Attended Risley (Ga.) High School.

BILLY RAY SMITH (74) Def. Tackle 6'4" 240 Arkansas

Back in the winter of 1961 the Colts swapped defensive back Jackie Simpson to Pittsburgh for Billy Ray, who'd been a defensive end—one season with Los Angeles, which had drafted him third, and three with the Steelers—until the trade. It turned out to be one of Baltimore's better transactions, as Billy Ray was promptly moved inside to a tackle post and saw first string service for two years before yielding to the pressures of his own business and retiring in 1963. Lured away from his Gulf Coast position last year, he stepped in and supplied the Colts' frontline pass rush with a terrific boost, splitting a tackle assignment with Guy Reese, who was more likely to get the call in running situations. The former Golden Glove and college boxer, full of fight and fire, figures to be even more effective this season—after having shaken off his rust from a year's inactivity. His 1964 efforts included the recovery of three enemy fumbles . . . Off-season: Stockbroker . . . Wife: Carol. Children: Bruce, 8; Shelley, 5; Billy, 4 . . . Born: January 27, 1935, in Augusta, Ark. Attended Laura Connor High School.

AL SNYDER (80) End 6'0" 192 Holy Cross

A Baltimorean who journeyed to New England for his college education, Al set a Holy Cross career record by snaring 90 throws for 1,474 yards during a three-year hitch as a halfback. His nine catches vs. Buffalo as a senior in 1962 represented a single game Crusader mark. That same autumn the fleet receiver hauled down a total of 41 aerials for 716 yards and six touchdowns. He also carried the ball 44 times for 237 yards (5.4 ave.) and returned six punts for 48 yards and eight kickoffs for 115 yards while spearheading the Cross' attack. Signed by the Colts as a free agent, he's been studying law at Boston College the past two years. He'll be given a test as an out end by the Baltimore club . . . Wife: Jean Marie . . . Hometown: Baltimore, Md. . . . Born: June 20, 1941. Attended Loyola High School.

STEVE STONEBREAKER (31) Linebacker 6'3" 222 Detroit

In the winter preceding the 1964 season the Colts traded guard Palmer Pyle to Minnesota for Stoney. It was strictly a gamble but the Colts really cashed in as the former college end definitely came to play, earned a starting job as the left side linebacker in training camp, missed the last three pre-season games and the opening league contest with a knee injury, then started and finished 14 games in succession, including the championship fray. A slashing type performer, ever anxious for contact and action, Steve knocked down every foe in sight, deflected passes and recovered three fumbles, lugging one of them for a touchdown. A tight end with the Vikings in his rookie campaign, he was shifted to linebacker in 1963 and was a part-time starter. He was a utility prospect at the beginning of 1964 but wound up injecting the entire defensive unit with his hard-hitting qualities. Stoney spent two years with the Army in Europe before opening 25 consecutive games for Detroit U. The Vikings had made him their 12th draft choice as a future in 1961 . . . Off-season: Insurance sales . . . Wife: Carol. Children: Andrea Lee, 6; Lee Ann, 4; Steven, 3; Linda Lee, 1 . . . Born: October 28, 1938, in Moline, Ill. Attended Utica (Mich.) High School.

JIM STRONG (23) Def. Back-Punter 6'0" 195 Delaware St.

The Colts signed Jim as a two-way free agent prospect—as a safetyman and as a punter. A scouting report revealed that the quick-striking back was credited with 21 tackles in a single game last fall. He was a consistent punter throughout his college career—thumping the ball six times for a 64.7-yard average in one contest—and could give the Colts a big lift in that department . . . Home-town: Atlanta, Ga. . . Born: October 22, 1943. Attended Booker T. Washington High School.

DAN SULLIVAN (71) Guard 6'3" 250 Boston College

As has been the case since he first joined the Colts as their third draft choice in 1962 Dan is regarded as a two-way possibility at guard or tackle on the attack. He's actually seen more service on the punt and kickoff units than anywhere else—and in this capacity he's given the club 100%, never failing to deliver his hardest shots as a blocker or tackler. The Colts still figure that Sully, who was tutored by ex-Baltimore guard Art Spinney in college, has starting potential. They also know that he'll be hustling to make that number one outfit again this season . . . Off-season: Engineering . . . Wife: Lorraine. Children: Elizabeth Ann, 1 . . . Born: September 1, 1939, in Boston, Mass. Attended Boston Tech High School.

DICK SZYMANSKI (52) Center 6'3" 235 Notre Dame

The Colts drafted Dick on the second round in 1955, despite the fact that his college football activity had been prematurely concluded by a ruptured spleen that came dangerously close to taking his life. As a NFL rookie, however, Szymanski not only won the first string center job but earned a Pro Bowl assignment. His career was then interrupted by a tour of Army duty, following which he was converted to a linebacker post in mid-1957. When Buzz Nutter was traded to Pittsburgh in 1961 he returned to center and repeated Pro Bowl appearances in 1962 and 1964. In his last two seasons he's been dropping out of the protective pocket to nail enemy strays and blitzers and he's been highly efficient, while doing more legwork than in the past . . . Off-season: Promotional work for brewing company . . . Wife: Patricia Ann. Children: Debra Ann, 4; Michael Patrick, infant . . . Born: October 7, 1932, in Toledo, Ohio. Attended Libbey High School.

PRO BOWL—1955-62-64TED TOROK (67) Guard 6'4" 248 Virginia

The co-captain of last year's Virginia team, Ted lettered for two seasons at tackle before switching to guard in 1964—being named the outstanding player in the North Carolina game. He specialized on offense and will be tried there by the Colts. Possessing strength and fair speed, he's reputed to have all of the required physical equipment. If he can match this with aggressiveness he could make the veteran guards hustle. The Colts signed him as a free agent . . . Hometown: Martins Ferry, Ohio . . . Born: August 17, 1943. Attended Martins Ferry High School.

JOHN UNITAS (19) Quarterback 6'1" 194 Louisville

The past season, when he completed 158 of 305 passes (51.8%) for 2,824 yards and 19 touchdowns, did not rank with John's best statistically. But as a leader, play-caller and all-around clutch performer he was never better. His mistakes were kept to a minimum as he had a career low of only six tosses intercepted and he produced maximum distance via his heaves—averaging 17.9 yards per completion. His efforts were successful enough to warrant his being named the National Football League's "most valuable player". He was also an All-Pro pick for the fourth time and played in his eighth Pro Bowl game in as many years. The whip-armed slinger has been named "mvp" in three Pro Bowls and the championship games of 1958 and 1959—both won by the Colts.

Not only does Johnny U fire the ball with accuracy and authority but he's also improved steadily as a ballcarrier and now has accumulated 1,518 yards rushing (4.3 ave.) as a pro. And when he's not throwing or running he's likely to be thumping a downfield defender with a jarring block. Not since his rookie season has Unitas been connected with a loser and he'll doubtless be pumping for points for quite a few years yet. His N.F.L. marks include a string (snapped in 1960) of 47 straight games in which he pegged TD strikes and 237 completions in 1963. In addition, he now ranks third in all-time N.F.L. records in touchdown tosses—187; pass attempts, 3,031; and air yardage, 24,315 yards. He could shatter all existing league standards before he calls it quits as a chucker.

A brilliant bomber at Louisville, John was drafted ninth by Pittsburgh in 1955. After being released by the Steelers he joined the semi-pro Bloomfield Rams for the remainder of the campaign. The Colts signed him as a free agent the following year . . . Off-season: Promotional work . . . Wife: Dorothy Jean. Children: Janice, 9; John, 8; Bob, 6; Chris, 5 . . . Born: May 7, 1933, in Pittsburgh, Pa. Attended St. Justin's High School.

BOB VOGEL (72) Tackle 6'5" 250 Ohio State

In his second year in the National Football League blond Bob notched All-Pro honors and played at his regular position, offensive left tackle, in the Pro Bowl game. A starter from his first day in the Colts' training camp in 1963, after he'd completed duty with the College All-Stars, Bob has improved with each game, particularly as a pass protector. He's strong and agile and he's already survived duels with the toughest defensive ends in the business. Conscientious and intelligent in his approach to his job, the former Ohio State All-American has made a point of doing a quick study of the opponents he must contend with from his tackle post. A winner of 13 letters in four sports at high school, he earned All-American recognition as a schoolboy end—being shifted to tackle in college. He was a number one draft pick . . . Off-season: Promotional work for chemical company . . . Wife Andrea . . . Born: September 23, 1941, in Columbus, Ohio. Attended Massillon (Ohio) High School.

PRO BOWL—1964; ALL-PRO—1964

JOE WILLIAMS (54) Linebacker 6'4" 240 Maryland St.

A favorable scouting report from Buddy Young brought Joe to the Colts' attention and they signed him as a free agent. He was impressive in State's game vs. North Carolina College, showing good range and speed as an end. The fast-improving gridder will be tried as a linebacker by the Colts, however, after turning in a solid overall defensive performance last fall . . . Hometown: Magnolia, N. J. . . . Born: May 12, 1942. Attended Haddon Heights (N. J.) High School.

LEMMON WILLIAMS (85) Def. End 6'3" 265 Calif. Western

Signed as a free agent by the Colts in their quest for giant, bruising linemen, Lem figures to get a shot at a defensive end post. A tackle through most of his college career—which included a hitch at San Diego City College before he transferred to Cal Western for his junior and senior years—he's reportedly powerful enough and agile enough to take a crack at the terminal . . . Hometown: San Diego, Calif. . . . Attended Lincoln High School.

JIM WELCH (46) Def. Back 6'0" 190 S.M.U.

An ever improving defender, jolting Jimmy failed to produce an interception last fall but he did slam into rival ballcarriers as viciously as at any time in the past. This was his third season as the Colts'

Vogel

Welch

number one right safety and his coverage on pass plays was excellent, as he blocked many throws and blanketed receivers to the extent that fewer balls were fired into his area. The one-time college fullback, who was selected third by the Colts, did come out second best in a collision with a Wrigley Field goal post while chasing Chicago's Mike Ditka. The damaged knee that resulted sidelined him for the next game. His fine speed enables him to overtake runaway rivals from the rear and he's saved the Colts more than a few points in this manner . . . Off-season: Stockbroker . . . Wife: Betty. Children: Mark Allan, 7; Laurie Anne, 6 . . . Born: March 17, 1938, in Anson, Texas. Attended Abilene (Texas) High School.

BUTCH WILSON (86) End 6'2" 218 Alabama

One of the most improved players on the squad last fall, Butch is expected to make more progress in 1965, his third year in the NFL after being selected on the second round in 1963. Besides being a crack operator on the special teams, the blond from 'Bama caught seven tosses for 86 yards and a touchdown a year ago. Filling in for John Mackey in the crucial second game vs. Green Bay he hauled in three passes for 42 yards—each grab producing a first down. "The best blocking back" in the Southeastern Conference as a college senior, Wilson has had to make the transformation to a pro tight end and there are still phases of his game that he's attempting to smooth out in an effort to break into the starting lineup. He has a fine attitude and keeps the throttle wide open at all times on the field . . . Off-season: Hardware sales . . . Wife: Susie . . . Born: September 18, 1941, in Birmingham, Ala. Attended Hueytown (Ala.) High School.

MOORE DASHING DOWN TD TRAIL

With a record-breaking 20 touchdowns to his credit in 1964, Lenny Moore boosted his nine-year NFL total to 98 six-pointers, only seven behind the all-time co-leaders, Green Bay's Don Hutson and Cleveland's Jim Brown. Lenny's most productive previous season was 1961 when he crossed the enemy goal line on 15 occasions. All but six of Moore's touchdowns have been registered against opposition that the Colts will encounter in 1965. The breakdown follows:

opponents	no. games	TDs rushing	TDs receiving	Total TDs
Minnesota	5	4	6	10
Green Bay	18	9	5	14
San Francisco	15	7	6	13
Detroit	17	7	6	13
Washington	8	6	0	6
Los Angeles	15	10	8	*19
Chicago	18	8	9	17
Totals (nine years)	96	51	40	92

Lenny, of course, is still working on a string of 17 straight league games in which he's scored a touchdown. That, too, represents a NFL mark . . . *includes kickoff return of 92 yards for TD.

JOHNNY U CRANKS UP AGAINST OLD RIVALS

Although Johnny Unitas hasn't done much quarterbacking against the Philadelphia Eagles—only several pre-season warm-ups—he's pitched a-plenty vs. the remainder of the teams on the Colts' 1965 schedule. The breakdown follows:

opponents	no. games	att.	comp.	yardage	TDP	longest	int.
Minnesota	8	215	116	2,030	18	80	9
Green Bay	17	446	245	3,421	29	63	23
San Francisco	18	493	262	3,717	23	82	17
Detroit	18	503	274	4,184	29	80	29
Washington	9	259	147	2,233	18	67	9
Los Angeles	18	498	272	3,783	28	62	21
Chicago	16	441	235	3,381	26	80	20
Totals (nine years)	104	2,855	1,551	22,749	171	82	128

It may be observed that Johnny's been a consistent passer against all of these foes—with only Detroit's 29 interceptions being an outstanding figure. And the Lions paid for the thefts by yielding the most completions and the most yardage, as well as deadlocking with the Packers for the dubious distinction of being victimized for the most touchdowns via the Unitas air route.
